

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved my time at home, whereas I used to answer up to 5 calls each day from telemarketers, now I rarely receive any. I called and put my name on the list to restrict telemarketers from calling me as soon as it was available and I don't want to see this law become less effective. If I want to call a company for services, I will do the calling, not the other way around. Thank you.
